SUMMER FUN TIME — Jose Sierra, 10, and Stephanie Fernando, 6, try to decide which favorite sport to choose for their nameplate as they sign up for Pasadena Public Library's "Be a Sport: Read!" in summer reading club. The Children Department's librarian, Betty Savage, right, offers suggestions.

Pasadena Libraries Holding Free Summer Reading Clubs

Pasadena area youngsters are being invited to join this summer's free Summer Reading Club at the Pasadena Public Library.

The club starts officially at all nine Pasadena libraries as soon as school is out for the summer, according to Betty Savage, children's librarian.

"Be a Sport: Read!" is the club's slogan. Each member will be given his own nameplate to paint with the sport uniform of his choice and his own sign-up card complete with All Star, Major Leaguer and Minors sports quiz on the back.

Any child may join by reading a book and then describing the story to the children's librarian.

Among the many other free programs and activities planned this summer for children at each Pasadena Library are:

—La Pintoresca Branch Library, 1355 N. Raymond Ave.: summer crafts, 10:30 a.m., Tuesdays, June 22 through Aug. 31; puppet club, 2 p.m., Wednesdays, June 23 through Aug. 26 and pre-school film strips, 10 a.m., Fridays, June 25 through Sept. 3.

—San Rafael Branch Library, 1240 Nithsdale Road: pre-school story

Painter, Author To Discuss Work

Robert Quackenbush, painter, teacher, author and illustrator of more than 50 books for children, will talk about his work and demonstrate illustrating techniques Saturday in Pasadena Public Library Auditorium.

He will also conduct a mini-art class and will present the premiere of a new film, "America Sings," during the program at 11 a.m.

As an art teacher, Quackenbush said his "basic premise stems from my belief that everyone has a unique story to present and to share with children, whether it is told with pictures or with words or both. To awaken these stories within my students, I begin by having them draw or write about the rooms they slept in as children."

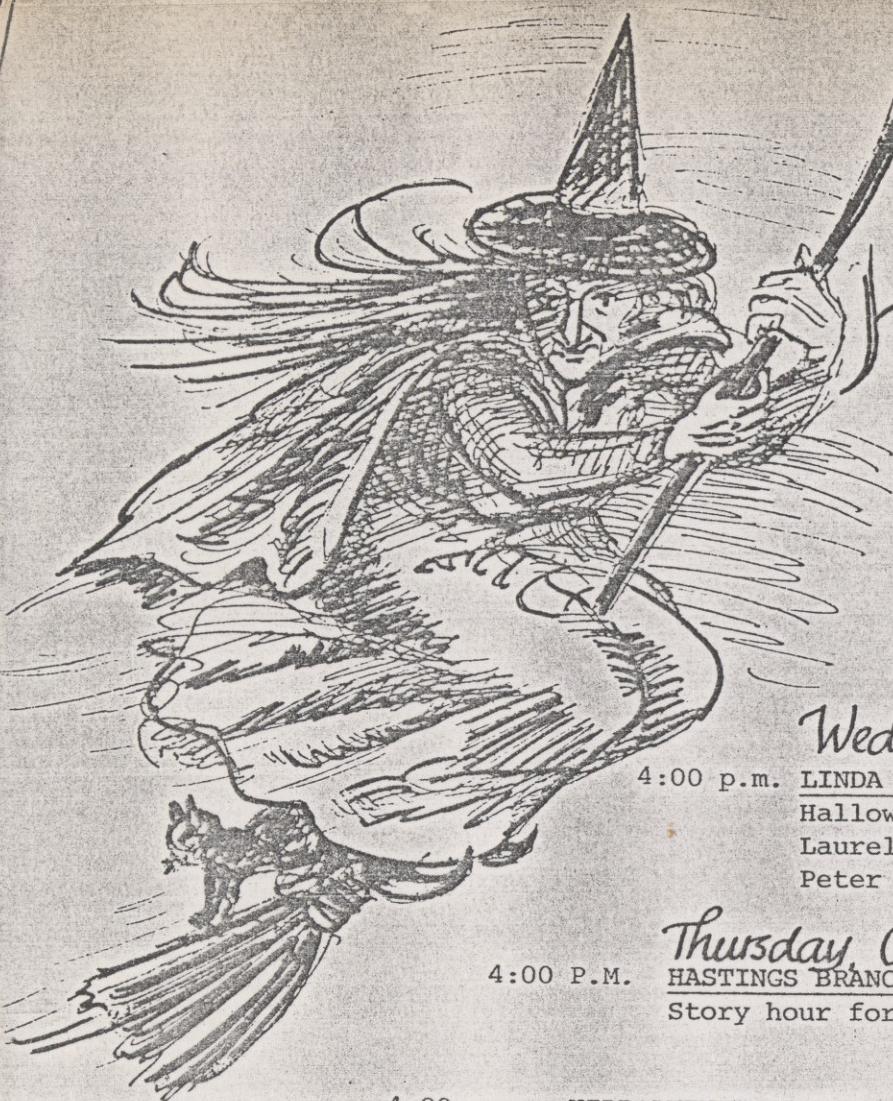

Born in Hollywood and educated at Art Center College of Design, Quackenbush now lives in New York, where he free lances and owns an art gallery.

Honors won by Quackenbush include Society of Illustrators citations in 1967 for "If I Drove A Truck," and in 1969 for "The Pilot," and "Little Hans, The Devoted Friend." In 1963, he was given the American Institute of Graphic Arts Fifty Best Books award for "Poems For Galloping."

Pasadena area parents, children and friends are invited to attend Quackenbush's free hour-long program in the Library Auditorium, 285 E. Walnut St. Further details are available by calling Children's Division, 577-4046.

CHUGGING ALONG — Mrs. John F. Beall, left, director of the Friends of the Pasadena Public Library, and Paul B. Guayante, right, help Joey Rumsey, 7, and Erin Merritt, 9, cut out and color their entries in this year's Summer Reading Club at the library. Guayante created the winning theme — Ride the Reading Railroad — and designs for the club in a contest sponsored by the Friends' service group.

Reading Railroad begins library run to keep youths on right track

The chance to "Ride on the Reading Railroad," not the one featured in the popular game of "Monopoly" but one that involves a reading program offered this summer by the Pasadena Public Libraries, awaits all interested area youths.

The libraries' Summer Reading Club, open to all youths, begins Monday.

Youths who sign up to participate in the annual reading program will receive their own railroad track and railway engine to start their reading train on a trip to the station after they have read their first book and reported on it.

After that, youths may add up to five cars to the train, one for each additional book they read, until the club's six required books have been FPPL Summer Reading Club activities, said that as an addition to the Reading Railroad, the Friends will place a Lionel O gauge model train with tracks in each of the libraries for children to play with during the summer.

"The Friends want to double the number of children who get reading award certificates this August," Mrs. Beall said.

"And each child who reads six books will receive a certificate and have his name published in the Star-News," she said.

The June-through-August schedule of all library activities for children starts Monday and includes:

Mondays: 10:30 a.m., Hot Weather Arts and Crafts, Hill Avenue Library, 55 S. Hill Ave.; 2:30 p.m., Preschool filmstrips, Hastings Library, 2205 E. Cesar Chavez St.

Strings pulled to help reading

Marionette show used as reward

By HAROLD HUBBARD
Staff Writer

When is a marionette show like a carrot? When it serves to add motivation to a summer program designed to help children to read.

The Ambassador International Cultural Foundation is cooperating with the Friends of the Pasadena Public Library in presenting a special performance by Bob Baker's Marionette Theatre for youngsters who have qualified by reading six or more books designated by the library.

The qualifying youngsters will see a special presentation of "South American Fiesta" by the marionettes at the Ambassador Auditorium on Wednesday, Aug. 24, at 2 p.m.

"The Friends of the Library want to see more children spending some time during the summer reading instead of spending so much time watching television," said Mrs. John F. (Anne) Beall, a member of the Friends.

For the first time, we now have books in the city's recreation centers and we hope this will help children discover how much pleasure may be had by stimulating the imagination through reading. The program is making the library more visible while filling a need. We expect more than 1,000 youngsters to be eligible for the show," she said.

Nine Pasadena branch libraries and the recreation centers at Robinson Park, Villa-Parke, Grant Park and Victory Park are participating.

The Bob Baker Marionette Theatre and studio at 1345 W. First St., Los Angeles, is one of the largest in the world devoted entirely to puppetry, Mrs. Beall said.

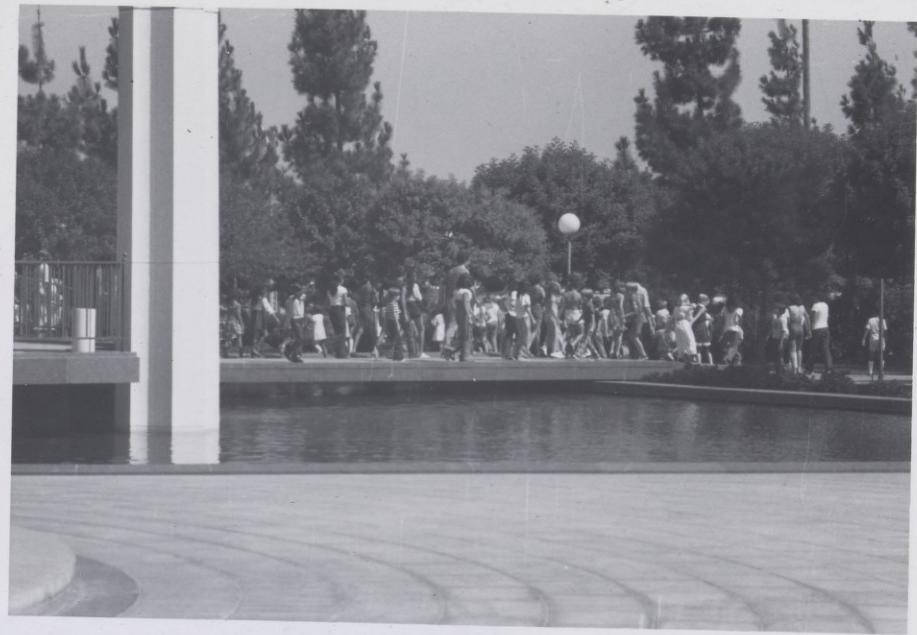

"The history of puppetry includes many famous names because puppetry enchants creative people," Mrs. Beall said. "Michaelangelo was a puppeteer. George Washington frequently attended the puppet theatre. Shakespeare, Goethe Voltaire and Gertrude Stein wrote plays for puppets. Mozart and Hayden composed music for puppet theatre."

"In addition to the theatre, puppets have appeared in courts and in the streets as entertainers. They have been used in religious rites. Now they appear almost daily in motion pictures and on television. Often they are seen as an alter ego, they can speak, sing and dance more freely than people. They provide the most perfect expression of human fantasies," she said.

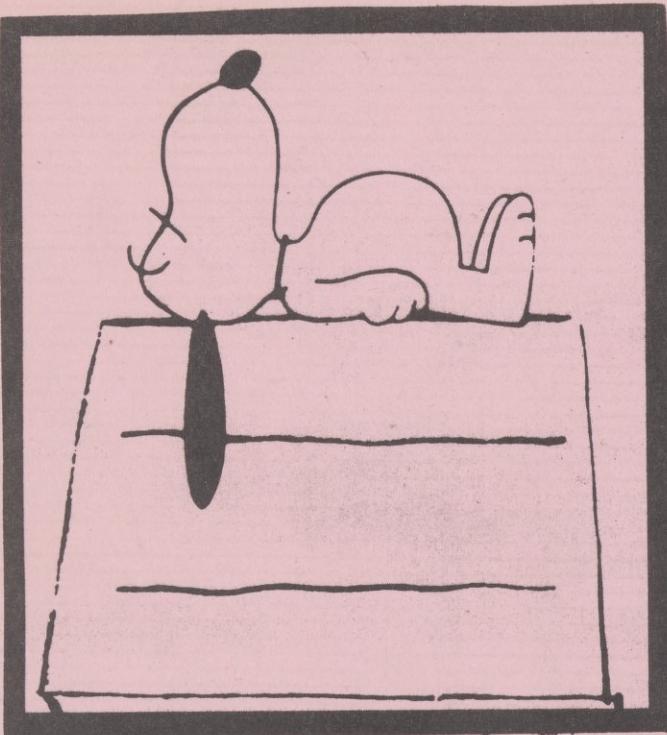

Anthony Thompson is president of the 500-member strong Friends of the Library.

MOTIVATORS — These Bob Baker marionettes are being used as a motivator to encourage children to read. The youngsters who read six books in the Friends of the Pasadena Public Library summer reading program will be entitled to see the puppets perform at Ambassador Auditorium on Aug. 24.

Ride on the Reading Railroad!

A SPECIAL FILM PROGRAM!

Hans Christian Andersen

Danny Kaye, Farley Granger, Jeanmaire

For two unforgettable hours, let Danny Kaye take you into a beautiful world of magic and make-believe — in a film that may well be one of the greatest and most popular films for children ever made. But far more than a fantasy for children, this portrait of the great Danish story-teller is a beautifully made multi-million dollar production that will delight the entire family. The joyful songs include "No Two People," "Thumbelina," "Wonderful Copenhagen," "Ugly Duckling," and "The Inchworm," and were written by Frank Loesser, composer of the score of "Guys And Dolls" and numerous hit songs. The breathtaking ballet scenes (including a spectacular number on ice skates) feature Parisian ballerina Jeanmaire; and the bewitching screenplay is by the immortal Moss Hart (MY FAIR LADY, YOU CAN'T TAKE IT WITH YOU). This is surely a motion picture you will want to show — and see — again and again!

Steve Forrest, Bill Mumy, Elsa Lanchester
A baby raccoon snuggles his way into the life of a lonely boy in Disney's screen adaptation of Sterling North's award-winning autobiographical novel. Young Sterling's furry friend Rascal becomes much more than a pet (and the town's chief mischief-maker)...he is the boy's only companion during Mr.
North's many absences from home. Finally both Sterling and his father realize their responsibilities to Rascal and reach a happy conclusion.
